We've made some major technological advances...

See Something, Send

Something App

In the last month, we've added Facial Recognition, the ability to gather tips from your agency from your agency website and manage them with See Something, Send Something and we've partnered with Facebook, Google Adwords, Blip Billboards and Spotify advertising to ensure community empowerment through app download and interaction.

We've done all this WITHOUT raising the price of our subscription rate or creating 'add-on' or ala carte pricing. We continue to offer unlimited services (users, tips, storage) and a 15-day trial. Please allow us to demo the See Something, Send Something app...it will be the most exciting 15 minutes of technology you've seen for less than the costs of a typical cell phone service plan.

Law Enforcement Features

WHY FACIAL RECOGNITION: Elizabeth Smart was seen by countless community members BUT none of them remembered her from a missing poster or flyer...they just knew something wasn't right. Our new facial recognition technology will compare tip submitted images to those of KNOWN missing persons, endangered pesons, wanted persons, sexual predators or any upload image provide by law enforcement.

Early research indicates a decreased recovery time of 23%!

About Us

We continue to be interview by major news outlets regarding our two-way tip submission and management platform.
